Description

Set on the banks of the Cuddalore backwaters just south of Pondicherry, this 150-year-old maritime home is a masterfully restored time capsule of British East India history. Guarded by a historic cannon at its entrance, the villa features suites named after the colonial legacy. The interiors are a gallery of heritage, adorned with original shipping ledgers, palm-leaf manuscripts, and repurposed antique card tables.

The home’s architecture invites relaxation through soft-hued living spaces and breezy sitouts that frame views of swaying trees and the shimmering horizon. With its proximity to the sea and guided tours of old maritime warehouses, this estate offers a rare, tranquil journey into the 18th-century Anglo-French wars and the golden age of shipping.
